International Arbitration and Dispute Resolution: The American-Australia Relationship

The Australian Centre for International Commercial Arbitration (ACICA) together with the International Centre for Dispute Resolution, the International Chamber of Commerce, the United Nations Commission on International Trade Law and the Australian International Disputes Centre together with the Australian Government Attorney-General’s Department invite you to International Arbitration and Dispute Resolution: The American-Australia Relationship.

In this forum we will discuss cross-border disputes and their increasing significance; relevant issues and benefits of opportunities for American and Australian entities to consider a neutral venue for international arbitration; the ICC Appointing Authority Rules; experiences of the ICDR in relation to emergency arbitrator proceedings; and the work of UNCITRAL on the revisions to the Notes on Organising Arbitral Proceedings.
